- b. NWRL OCLC CatExpress overage use.
 - i. The service charges $1.34 per access for the first 1,520 records accessed and $2.65 for any thereafter. This year, 8,173 records were accessed, meaning 6,653 records were accessed at the higher rate.
 - ii. The total overage cost is $17,360.45.
 - iii. NLLN closed the subscription in July, given the unexpectedly high cost and the inability to effectively track usage.

- c. Capitol Hill Associates, Minnesota Library Lobbyist contract.
 - i. The Minnesota Library Association pays a lobbyist approximately $6,000 per year to advocate for all libraries and library organizations in the state. NLLN contributes approximately $1,200 per year since it has the largest region.
 - ii. However, the lobbyist has not been effective in increasing funding and the multitype systems are considering not renewing the contract with the lobbyist.
 - iii. Currently, the contract is in effect for two more years, then NLLN and other multitypes will reconsider nonrenewal.

- d. Social Emotional Learning (SEL) grants, Censorship grants and training, and How to Stop Bullying grants and training.
 - i. The board decided to form a grant committee at the June meeting. However, the focus is going to change a little. Now, the committee will focus on meeting stated needs at libraries across the region using grants and applying for grants to provide information and materials on the topics of SEL, censorship, and bullying rather than training.
 - 1. NLLN's function is to obtain and share information. NLLN can provide professional development books, help develop collections, and make information available.
 - ii. New standards regarding the inclusion of Native American literature will go into effect in 2023/2024. NLLN can begin working on providing information and resources on this topic to help schools prepare to implement the new requirements.
 - iii. Kathy will reach out to members across the region to ascertain their needs and what NLLN can help with. The grant-writing committee will move forward based on those responses.
- e. Gudmundson Collection (For the Love of Literature).
 - i. NLLN's new offices are nearby the Gudmundson room, named such for the donor who facilitated its renovation. That donor's brother, Wayne Gudmundson, wrote several books on photography, which have now been donated to the college as reference copies.
 - ii. Going forward NLLN can encourage such donations from MSUM's retired faculty with published works that need to be preserved.
- f. New Rivers Press Collection (For the Love of Literature).
 - i. The New Rivers Press, once located on MSUM's campus, is closing in December. The editor asked in NLLN would like to disperse their books to libraries throughout the region. Kathy is looking into it, but perhaps the collection should be sent to other publishing houses to preserve them and keep them in circulation—which is not guaranteed if they go out to libraries in the region, whose collections depend on usage and circulation.
 - ii. This project is in its early stages.
- g. Moving Words sponsorship.
 - i. NLLN is once again sponsoring this program so Minnesota Book Awards authors can come visit libraries in the region.
- h. Adjunct teaching.
 - i. Kathy has been asked to teach two classes at MSUM as an adjunct. Through this activity, she is able to access many resources that require a StarID.
 - ii. She does this work in the evening, not during her NLLN work day.

working on building a teen program with help from the school to improve the rate of young people with library cards.

- e. Charlie: NWRL summer reading program was spectacular. The system is now sending Moose Tracks, a bi-weekly online publication sent over email with updates from libraries in the system and a message from the director.
